DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lever, USP 6,187,456 in view of JP 06-136233A.

The cited primary reference substantially teaches the basic claimed method of forming a plastic article comprising providing a thermoplastic material with at least one silver-containing antimicrobial agent and a carboxylic acid salt, such as sodium or calcium stearate, forming the components into a mixture and shaping the mixture. See col. 1, lines 33-52; col. 2, lines 52-67; col. 3, lines 5-20; examples 2 and 6.

The cited primary reference does not teach the claimed weight percentage of the calcium stearate; note, however, that the amount used is about .08% by weight of the polymer.

The added secondary reference teaches as conventional the feature of an antimicrobial plastic composition comprising a lubricant that includes a metallic salt, wherein the salt comprises calcium stearate in a weight percentage of 0.01 to 10% by weight of the polymer. The reference sets forth the desirability of adding the lubricant for the benefit of preserving the antibacterial and antifungal nature of the antimicrobial agent, and further prevents color change. Please see page 6, paragraphs 0032 - 0034 of the translation provided.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to so include calcium stearate in the amount suggested in the added reference, when performing the process set forth in the added reference, for the added benefit of preserving the antimicrobial nature of the composition.

With respect to claims 2-4, see the added reference at page 6, paragraph 0034.

With respect to claims 5-7, see Lever, USP 6,187,456 at col. 3, lines 5-20 and example 2.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. 6013275; 4079060; 5614568; 5741526.
